ROTHERHAM

Public House offering potential for alternative uses including a dwelling.

Prince of Wales Public House, 9 Potter Hill, Greasbrough, Rotherham, S61 4NU.

Location

The subject property occupies an extremely prominent position at the junction of Potter Hill and Scrooby Street in Greasbrough. The immediate vicinity provides various commercial businesses as well as dwellings on Potter Hill, whilst the wider locality is a large residential catchment area. Bus routes run along Potter Hill. Adjacent suburbs include Scholes, Nether Haugh, Rawmarsh and Parkgate, whilst the centre of Rotherham is situated two miles to the south.

Description

The Prince of Wales Public House is a well-known pub within the local area and beyond, and comprises of an attractive, modernised and extremely well-maintained public house. The property is configured over two floors whilst having the usual cellar. The property is configured to include a main bar area, separate tap room, and toilet facilities at ground floor level, together with access to a first floor two-bedroomed flat. Outside there is a pleasant courtyard with vehicular access when needed to a further detached outbuilding which provides storage accommodation over two floors. The property benefits from a gas-fired central heating system, and has no brewery ties. The property would be perfectly placed to continue as a public house whilst offering potential for alternative uses which may be subject to planning, including a dwelling.
